In the centre of Paris on the banks of the Seine, opposite the Tuileries Gardens, the museum was installed in the former Orsay railway station, built for the Universal Exhibition of 1900. So the building itself could be seen as the first 'work of art' in the Musée d'Orsay. The Musée d'Orsay, like the Musée de l'Orangerie and the Musée Hébert, is a national museum under the authority of the Ministry of Culture. These three museums are managed by the Musée d'Orsay and Musée de l'Orangerie public establishment.

The national museum of the Musée d'Orsay opened to the public on 9 December 1986 to show the great diversity of artistic creation in the western world between 1848 and 1914. It was formed with the national collections coming mainly from three establishments :

- From the Louvre museum, for the works of artists born after 1820 or coming to the fore during the Second Republic;
- From the Musée du Jeu de Paume, which since 1947 had been devoted to Impressionism;
- And lastly from the National Museum of Modern Art, which, when it moved in 1976 to the Centre Georges Pompidou, only kept works of artists born after 1870.

A NEW GENERAL CIRCUIT :

- Impressionism (Manet, Degas, Monet, Cézanne, Renoir, Sisley...) on the 5th floor in a renovated gallery under the glass canopy,
- Post-Impressionism (Van Gogh, Gauguin, the school of Pont-Aven, Cross, Seurat, the Douanier Rousseau) on the middle level, on the side of the Rue de Lille.
